How to Use This Guide

Find Yourself!

This Guide is roughly organized by arts education services based on age group and type of arts interest. Please refer to our Table of Contents on page 3 to find incredible arts education experiences for yourself or your loved one. Whether you're looking for your partner, your child, your friend or yourself, you'll find the arts live here!

Find the Arts!

Be sure to flip through all the pages of arts experiences! This Guide, printed in Fall 2016, gives you a glimpse into the classes, seasonal events, and local businesses whose doors are open to you. The guide is meant to be a valuable commodity for you and your community. Everyone should have access to arts education. Please check out all the incredible opportunities the Gateway Arts District holds.

Find our Featured Partners!

Throughout the Guide you'll see blue boxes indicating a "Partner Feature." These feature pages are an opportunity for some of our incredible arts organizations to give you a little more in-depth information about who they are, what they offer, and what you won't want to miss!

Introduction

The Prince George's County Gateway Arts District ARTS LEARNING RESOURCE GUIDE serves as an organized document in print and digital editions that highlight lifelong arts education opportunities. The Gateway Arts District is proud to be the home of more than 500 artists, 150 studios and a dozen artist collectives. Many of the artists and arts spaces offer educational opportunities. There are all levels of creative engagement from introductory classes to master experiences for every age, and in every medium. Performances and exhibitions happen every week in the Gateway Arts District's private and public venues.

The Prince George's Gateway Arts District is a long stretch of creative industries encompassing four towns along two miles of Route 1. Each of the four towns – Mount Rainier, Brentwood, North Brentwood and Hyattsville – has a strong sense of place as an individual neighborhood with a unique cultural history. The arts and cultural community emerged from these tight-knit towns. Locally, they have an economic impact that supports small business and housing development in the Maryland-Washington, DC suburban area. Regionally, the arts community reinforces the brand of: funky, creative, green, and culturally-rooted.

Prince George's County Public Schools has adopted an arts integration mission to enhance classroom learning through the arts. Our local schoolteachers are using the arts to teach core academic classes to elementary, middle and high school students.

Learning via the arts reduces stress, self-affirms character, and is healing. Let this Guide direct you to local artist-teachers who are available to share their knowledge and experiences.

Enhance your creativity, communication skills, conceptualization, problem-solving and critical thinking.

Please note:

The arts organizations included in the classes list of this guide are brick-and-mortar locations. There are many more collaborative arts organizations in the Gateway Arts District.

The Arts Learning Resource Guide is a living document. Periodic updates will be made to the online edition and to the annual printed guide. Please send edits, additions and other information to Neena@joesmovement.org.

About the Gateway Arts District

Innovate, Create, Inspire

Spanning two miles along Route 1 Baltimore/Rhode Island Avenue, with quick access to the MARC, two Green Line stations, and several bus lines to Mount Rainier, the Gateway Arts District is the perfect home for artists, art-lovers, families, commuting professionals, and students. Formed in 2001, the rich artistic diversity of the area results in a variety of restaurants, coffee houses, local and regional theaters, galleries and entertainment, as well as arts-related businesses such as arts and crafts stores, designers, and art supply stores that support and extend the influence and economic vitality of the artists' community.

Our Vision

The Prince George's County Gateway Arts & Entertainment District is a focal point for art activities of all types, as well as for socializing, entertaining, dining, shopping, and living. It offers the richness and diversity of the metropolitan region, but retains at its core the heart of the four small towns: Mount Rainier, Brentwood, North Brentwood, and Hyattsville.

Our Message

As a dynamic center of innovation in the arts for Prince George's County and beyond, the Gateway Arts District defies both definition and expectation. More than a collection of neighborhoods, it's a vibrant environment – a place to inspire and be inspired, to experience the creative process, and to appreciate pioneering, experienced artists of every medium. The Gateway Arts District is an exciting focal point for artistic endeavors – and those with an appreciation for them.

History of the Gateway Arts District

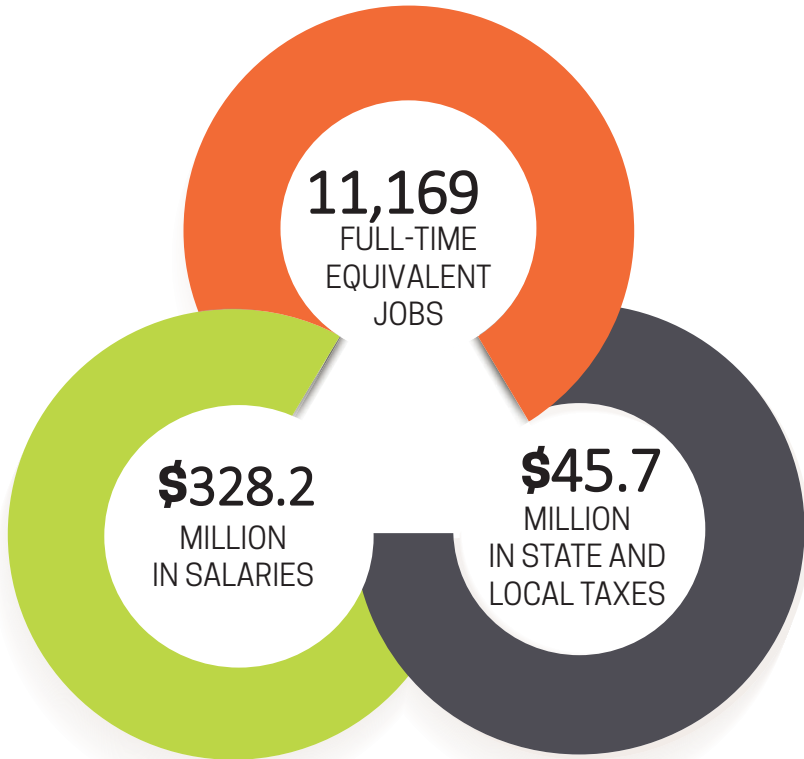

The Gateway Arts District was envisioned in 1999 at a gathering of artists, local leaders and citizens as a method of spurring economic growth and attract investment to the community. Established in 2002, the artist-focused development has attracted more artists, knowledge workers, new homeowners, and greater interest from developers. This influx broadened and further cemented an already authentic arts-producing base for the revitalization to continue.
